Forecast date and purpose

Prepared by the fictional treasury team February 25 and delivered February 26, 2027 at 10 am New York time. This is a focused cash forecast incorporating report 10, not a full monthly income statement. It continues the February 12 forecast in report 09 and incorporates only information available by February 25.

Receipts, payments and funding assumptions

Supplier confirmation YETI-SUP-0217, received February 17, requires $5.0m on March 5 to retain production slots for an existing ordinary replenishment order. This amount was previously due May 28 and was included on that date in management's purchasing schedule. Management accepted the revised supplier payment schedule on February 18. It is an ordinary procurement payment, not new discretionary expansion or borrowed money.

The prepayment is a supplier advance until ownership of the goods transfers; it is not immediately COGS or eligible cash. The full $5.0m moves from May to March, so cumulative cash is $5.0m lower through May 27 and rejoins the prior schedule after May 28. This is separate from the $2.4m supplier payment already deferred to April 30 in report 09. That payment remains included once, on April 30.

The supplier declined another deferral in its February 18 confirmation. Releasing these production slots would interrupt committed customer orders; no substitute supplier with the same delivery window is available. Inventory reductions and collection gains from report 09 are already included. No equity injection or replacement borrowing is committed.

All other forecast receipts, fees, operating costs, interest, estimated cash-tax installments and capital expenditure assumptions remain as in the comparison schedule. The prior operating mitigations are already included. No new financing, owner contribution or discretionary expansion is assumed. Estimated earnings, receivables and supplier advances are kept separate from cleared bank cash. Amounts below are USD millions.

Thirteen-week cash forecast

The cash reduction is cumulative at each date, not a separate deduction to be added every week. Revised cash equals comparison cash less that cumulative reduction. May 21 is a new continuation estimate, not a number from report 09. The comparison assumes the original cash timing. The earlier dates reproduce report 09 exactly.

Week ending	Comparison cash	Cumulative reduction	Revised cash
2027-02-26	13.8000	0.0000	13.8000
2027-03-05	14.0000	5.0000	9.0000
2027-03-12	14.1000	5.0000	9.1000
2027-03-19	14.3000	5.0000	9.3000
2027-03-26	14.4000	5.0000	9.4000
2027-04-02	14.2000	5.0000	9.2000
2027-04-09	14.6000	5.0000	9.6000
2027-04-16	15.0000	5.0000	10.0000
2027-04-23	15.4000	5.0000	10.4000
2027-04-30	15.7000	5.0000	10.7000
2027-05-07	16.0000	5.0000	11.0000
2027-05-14	16.3000	5.0000	11.3000
2027-05-21	16.5000	5.0000	11.5000

Month-end continuation and timing

The following continuation estimates were prepared February 25 for the calendar dates shown. They are forecasts, not bank statements. The April 30 balance agrees with the weekly schedule.

Month-end	Comparison cash	Cumulative reduction	Revised cash
2027-02-28	13.9000	0.0000	13.9000
2027-03-31	14.2500	5.0000	9.2500
2027-04-30	15.7000	5.0000	10.7000
2027-05-31	16.8000	0.0000	16.8000

The $5.0m cash reduction disappears after the old May 28 payment date because that payment has already been made in March. There is no May refund, expense reversal or liability forgiveness. The month-end continuation schedule includes the unchanged $2.4m April 30 payment and the earlier procurement savings. March 31 and May 31 forecasts were prepared February 25.

No later actual result is embedded in these estimates. The last finalized month-end supplied here remains January 31. Future operating receipts and the stated counterparty payment dates remain sources of uncertainty.
